A charming touch in Baywood shop

Old World Charm

Preserve folk art and classic furniture designs

Reprinted from Focus of the Trib, September 22, 1984

Close your eyes a minute in a shop called Old World Charm and you can still see tires and cases of crankcase oil, a girlie calendar on a dirty wall.

Open them and you see a darkeyed woman, small paintbrush in hand, surrounded by her work - pieces of furniture artfully decorated, a clock, a harpsichord and an elaborately painted wooden goose.

Toiling quietly in a corner of defunct Baywood Park gas station, its walls now clean and white, Georgianna does bauernmaleri.

Bauernmaleri simply means "peasant paintings" in German. It is a bit different from tole painting, which it resembles: "There's a distinction, though," Georgianna explains. "Tole painting is similar, but the term more correctly refers to the sort of painting done on tin boxes."

There are plenty of examples of bauernmaleri in the old 2nd Street gas station she recently bought and transformed into showroom and shop.

From that once-greasy environment, their wares are making their way to some of California's finest homes and galleries.

"She's excellent. Her work is among the best," said John Lindermans, a Dutchman, now a noted Osos craftsman in his own right. And he should know - bauernmaleri is well preserved art in his homeland.

She replicates peasant pieces from as far back as the 16th century. Then works her magic on them along with furniture, the musical instruments and old chests brought in by clients.

All are appropriate objects for Georgianna's birds, flowers and homey scenes.

"From about the 16th century, pine furniture in Northern Europe was painted this way by cabinetmakers as a means of preserving the soft wood," she explains.

"As time passed, the cabinetmaker became somewhat elaborate in his decorative techniques inspired by the painted wooden ceilings in village churches and country castles. Even though the cabinetmaker had no formal training, designs full of flowers, birds and scrolls evolved.

"As the folk art became more popular, people from all walks of life commissioned hand-painted furniture to mark important events in their lives. Wedding chests and trunks with names and dates appropriately recorded were the most popular pieces. Also cherished were wardrobes, beds and cradles."

When she does commission work, Georgianna also often personalizes a piece with scenes favorite flowers, or hearts and tulips if the work is to recall a loving time.

Georgianna is a second generation San Luis Obispo County artist - and a 5th generation resident - who began painting on canvas. Her inspiration, she says, came from her folks and the late Peter Schmitz, a German who settled in Halcyon, "a man who in his 80s had incredible light."

"He was a master who began as a young apprentice. For years at the start in Germany, all he was allowed to do was mix paints."

The paint Georgianna uses is acrylic rather than ground natural pigments in an oil base, but she is able to make them look just as natural. The finish is flat, rather than glossy, and often subdued pastel rather than bright - "though the work to be found from the 16th century through the 18th was probably bright when it was new."

"I can make the work come out bright, as if it were new, but I personally prefer the muted tones of a 200-year-old piece," she said.

And she prefers the folk painting to painting on canvas.

"Painting on canvas, you do one after the other and occasionally sell one. With furniture, it's practical. I felt if I did a chair and it didn't sell, I could use it."

FAMILY PORTRAIT:

THE MARTINES'

Creating SLO Memories for Five Generations

by Susan Stewart

Here's a bit of San Luis trivia for you:
What do Sunset Palisades, See Canyon,
the old George's Market on Foothill, the

now closed Mission Plaza Antiques, United Meat Market on Higuera Street (the best butcher shop in town for years), Bassey Ranch (the gracious older home visible from the freeway just north of the San Luis Bay Drive/Avila exit), Twin Brooks Farm in Los Osos, and the Marketplace on lower Higuera Street all have in common? Answer: They have all been owned or are currently owned by members of the George and Ann Martines family.

Beginning with the purchase of 1500 acres in See Canyon in the late 1800s, and coming full circle to the Marketplace (that wonderful combination of antiques, gifts,
and fine food on South Higuera Street) -
some of this county's most cherished

memories were established, built, owned and run, by a Martines family member.

In a recent conversation held at the Marketplace during the busy holiday season, George and Ann Martines shared their family's rich and generous history,
much of which provoked fond childhood memories of my growing up years in San Luis Obispo. Some of my favorite ones, I soon realized, were made possible by this diversely talented family.

Born and raised in Avila Beach, George Martines was one of four children born to George and Georgia (Ruda) Martines. It was the Ruda side of his parentage, namely his maternal grandfather, Antone Ruda, who pioneered See Canyon, building a home and flourishing as a cattleman there.
Antone left his home in Brazil at the age of only 14, when he traveled to Boston to become a tile cutter and then journeyed to California. George's great-grandfather, whose name was Antone dela Ruda, was a renowned coffee plantation owner for whom statues were built and boulevards
were named in his native Rio de Janeiro.

With Portuguese ancestry on both sides,
George's paternal grandfather emigrated from the Azore Islands, first to Salinas, and then to this area, where he thrived as a farmer, a fisherman, and a land owner. In the early 1900s, he owned nearly all of what is now known as Sunset Palisades.
With a wistful look in his eyes as he recalled that fact, George said that in a survey taken during the 1960s, Sunset Palisades was touted as having the best
year-round weather in the world.

The Martines family flourished here, due in part to the fact that three of the Martines men all married Ruda women!
George's father, also named George, was a produce buyer for 35 years, purchasing for markets from San Francisco to Los Angeles. George said that it was his father who was his strongest influence. "He was always in business for himself," George explained. "He could do anything ... artist, fisherman, builder ... I had a super childhood," he added.

George began his varied career at only 15,
as a commercial fisherman working the party boats out of Avila and running the family fish market. He went away to college right out of high school, but returned to San Luis after only one year to help his father with the business. After a short time managing the sporting goods department for Montgomery Wards (which stood for years where Beverly Fabrics is now), George bought a little market on Foothill near Tassajara. For the next eleven years George's Market was a neighborhood "institution." Working briefly for Williams Brothers Markets, George next bought United Meat Market, which he ran from 1970 to 1979. Those who remember "United" would probably agree that for the best quality meats, special orders and deli foods in town, there was nowhere else like it.

In more recent years, George has become an "antiquer" buying and selling fine antiques, and accumulating stock for the business that he and his wife, Ann, began in 1988 - the Marketplace. While Ann oversees much of the operation there, George spends most of his time on one of the five specialty crop farms they purchased in 1985. On Twin Brooks Farm in Los Osos, you will find snow peas, five varieties of squash, tomatoes, chilis and bell peppers. The same crops are grown at the other four, located near Santa Margarita, Avila Beach, Templeton, and Toro Creek.

All tolled, George Martines has had quite a diversified working career, not counting his other career - that of husband and father. In 1956, George married Ann Zanoli, the girl he met when they were both just teenagers at Mission High School. Born and raised in San Luis Obispo, Ann was one of two children born to Willfred and Harriet Zanoli. Ann's grandparents, Frances and Gicento Zanoli, were both born in Switzerland, but didn't meet until they arrived in this county, where he was a railroad engineer and she worked as a maid. Ann said that in those days, "real" maids really existed; ones who lived in the homes they serviced and who wore uniforms, too.

Ann's father worked for PG&E and her mother worked at Riley's, another San Luis institution, for over 30 years. It was music that Ann remembers most about growing up in San Luis. Members of service clubs and organizations during the 40s and 50s would have to remember being entertained by Ann Zanoli and Bunny Christie, a popular duo who sang contemporary songs and accompanied themselves on ukeleles. She began singing with Bunny at the age of five and continued performing with her until just before she married George. They even appeared on local television shows on a weekly basis both here and in Santa Barbara. Ann still sings, but only around the house. Her business and her family now take up the time she used to spend entertaining.

George and Ann Martines have four children, three with children of their own. Mike Martines is a produce broker, like his grandfather before him. He is married to Mary and has one daughter, Lauren. Rosalind (Martines) Fish, known to most as "Dee Dee" is married to Brian Fish was that uncle, Jake See, for whom See Canyon was named. Dee Dee worked until recently at the Marketplace and Brian works on the Martines farms. John Martines also works on the family farms and has two children, Johnny and Jenny. George and Ann's youngest, James, is single and works on the farms as well.

All three boys attended SLO High School and were active in football, track, and baseball. John and James lettered in football and track, and Michael, who played in the Babe Ruth League, was part of the winning team for the Western Division in his senior year, 1976. very active in the booster club at SLO High School. In her youth (besides the singing), Ann was quite an athlete, participating in volleyball, basketball and baseball at Mission High. The Marketplace, which houses up to eighteen other antique dealers to whom they sublease, keeps Ann running, not to mention their own antique and gift store, plus a great new restaurant, Picasso's, which opened in November to rave reviews. Needless to say, George's days on the five farms are long and hard as well.

Hard work, however, must agree with this active and attractive couple. George cuts a very handsome and physically fit figure, belying his age. Ann's soft, short strawberry blond hair flatters her pretty, fine features and large, light brown eyes. Their youthful appearance and hectic schedules made it hard to believe they've been married for nearly 40 years!

They hope to take time off to travel but "We're not there yet!" said George, referring to quite a few more years of work ahead. Ann wants to someday visit Switzerland, her father's homeland. With his family still living there, it is a dream of hers. "I don't know how I'm going to get there," she laughed, "because I don't like flying and I don't like boats!"

This year, however, the Martines' travel plans seem unimportant. The holidays were celebrated in the traditional way at their home on O'Connor Way. "We've been cooking the same things and doing things exactly the same way since I was a child," said Ann. As with most families, seeing their children healthy and happy is always the first priority. But the phrase "happy and healthy" has taken on new meaning since Dee Dee's diagnosis of valvular disease last year. Calcified heart valves led first to major surgery, then to infection, followed by two more unprecedented surgeries and a total of three months in intensive care.

Now at home and recovering nicely, Ann and George agree that Dee Dee is a walking miracle, thanks to a man named Dr. Silverstein and the countless prayers of family and friends. With gratitude shining in her eyes, Ann said, "We had a great Thanksgiving this year!" *

EDNA VALLEY

SLO man dies after crash off Orcutt Road

A 42-year old San Luis Obispo man died Saturday night after swerving off Orcutt Road and rolling his vehicle into a vineyard.

About 7:45 p.m., John Arnold Martinez of San Luis Obispo was headed north on Orcutt Road south of Tiffany Ranch Road when — for unknown reasons — he veered off the street and through a barbed-wire fence.

It was still light out, and the road was dry, according to a CHP report.

Martinez's 1998 Dodge Caravan plowed through several grapevines and hit the side of a ditch, the CHP reported.

It then flipped in the air and landed on its roof.

Martinez suffered fatal injuries. His van did not collide with any other vehicles on the road, according to the CHP report.

The CHP said the wreck is still under investigation.
